President Harry S. Truman,
White House,
Washington, D.C.

Dear President Truman,

May I humbly urge you to veto the McCarran Immigration Bill? I feel sure that, on the basis of your past record, this bill will be as repugnant to you as it is to many American citizens, who feel it betrays those principles upon which this country stands and for which we are now fighting.
Our popularity and support from the rest of the free world is gradually being whittled away by just such completely undemocratic concepts as this bill embodies.

May I also take this opportunity to congratulate you on your firm and courageous stands on our domestic civil rights program?

Sincerely yours,
Janet H. Clark
(Mrs. Harry R. Clark)
